Rally outside Bupa's Melbourne CBD corporate office

1. Rally for fair wages and safe staffing levels

Wednesday 25 October

1.45pm – 2.30pm

Outside Bupa's corporate office

Corner Exhibition Street and Flinders Lane

Wear your red t-shirt

Bupa nurses and carers from Bupa's 26 Victorian nursing homes are encouraged to attend this rally for fair wages and better staffing levels.

Bupa receives millions in federal taxpayer funding - $159.8 million in 2015-16 and $172.3 million in 2016-17. The Age newspaper reported Bupa's aged care businesses made a $45.1 million profit in 2016.

Nurses and carers should not have to campaign for providers to spend their federal aged care funding on safe staffing and fair wages.

ANMF is organising buses to transport members from every Bupa nursing home to and from Wednesday's rally. Bus details will be available tomorrow. Reserve a place on the bus by filling in this Bupa rally bus online form

Your Organiser will provide new campaign materials in the next few days so you can invite residents' family members to attend the rally.

Don't forget to wear your red t-shirt and send a strong message to Bupa management that fair wages and safe staffing levels matter to you.

2. Good Faith Bargaining Orders

The ANMF made an application for Fair Work Commission orders to correct misinformation about who can take legally protected industrial action and to prevent Bupa management interfering with site visits by ANMF staff.

The ANMF was successful in securing a commitment from BUPA to put up notices at all facilities confirming that both ANMF members and employees who have nominated the ANMF as a bargaining agent are entitled to take legally protected industrial action.

We also successfully secured a commitment from BUPA that ensures management cannot interfere with visits by the ANMF.

In a revised communication to employees Bupa Aged Care Australia Director of Operations Ian Burge said:

'At many of your homes you will be aware of some colleagues taking part in Protected Industrial Actions. We respect the right to do so, a right which ANMF members and employees who have appointed the ANMF as their bargaining representative have. They voted in favour of actions including wearing campaign materials, distributing campaign related information to residents, and stopping work to communicate with the media, and other subsequent actions such as stop work meetings of up to 2 hours, not completing ACFI paperwork, and starting or finishing shifts at the rostered time unless overtime approved in writing and in advance.'

3. Support from your ANMF colleagues across Australia

Delegates attending last week's 2017 ANMF Biennial National Conference unanimously passed a special resolution in support of ANMF (Vic Branch) members taking unprecedented protected industrial action across Bupa nursing homes. The resolution reads:

'That the 2017 Biennial National Conference stands in absolute unity with Victorian Branch members in BUPA aged care facilities in their industrial action seeking fair and just wages, improved staffing and conditions. This conference condemns in the strongest possible terms the behaviour of Bupa management in their attempts to intimidate and harass nurses and carers undertaking protected industrial action.'

FACTS

Good Faith Bargaining Orders

The ANMF made an application for orders to correct misinformation about who can take legally protected industrial action and to prevent BUPA management interfering with site visits by ANMF staff.

The ANMF was successful in securing a commitment from BUPA to put up notices at all facilities confirming that both ANMF members and employees who have nominated the ANMF as a bargaining agent are entitled to take legally protected industrial action.

We were also successful in securing a commitment from BUPA that ensures management cannot interfere with visits by the ANMF.

ANMF members and employees who have appointed ANMF as their bargaining agent are:

- legally entitled to take the protected industrial actions above
- are legally entitled to wear the red campaign t-shirt every shift.

Harassment and intimidation is unlawful

It's unlawful for managers or anyone to remove information about protected industrial action from a noticeboard designated for union information. It is also unlawful to coerce someone to stop taking lawful protected industrial action. Report harassment or intimidation via anmfvic.asn.au/Bupareport

Hardship Fund

Wage offer Bupa made once nurses and carers started protected industrial action. The offer over three years is significantly better than the 2.1 per cent in a one-year agreement Bupa made in December 2016. ANMF is seeking improved backpay. We're not stopping Bupa paying nurses and carers a pay rise while we continue to negotiate improved staffing levels and replacing staff on unplanned leave.

2x Registered nurses, and 4x carers for...

144 residents on night shift at Bupa Ballarat and similar staffing at other Bupa facilities

IS NOT ENOUGH

Bupa says staffing is changed according to acuity and staff capability. ANMF says Bupa should use its federal government funding to increase the number of nurses and carers on each full shift.

FEDERAL COURT

ANMF initiated Federal Court proceedings in response to Bupa's lack of consultation over the senior clinical nursing position redundancies. Bupa announced its proposal on 3 October, intended to make appointments to the remaining positions by 6 October, and planned to implement on 12 October. ANMF has received many letters from families unhappy about the nursing cuts and the impact on resident care. Justice O'Callaghan has reserved his decision.

FAIR WORK COMMISSION

ANMF made an application to the independent umpire for assistance to break the deadlock in negotiations. The Fair Work Commission's Deputy President Hamilton is now facilitating talks.

BREACH OF GOOD FAITH BARGAINING

ANMF made an application for orders regarding a breach of 'good faith bargaining' against Bupa for misrepresenting members' rights to take protected industrial action. ANMF has successfully secured a commitment from BUPA to put up notices in all facilities confirming ANMF members and employees who've nominated ANMF as a bargaining agent are entitled to take legally protected industrial action.
